

New Managing Partner Appointed at KPMG in Georgia

Effective October 2018, Kakha Rukhadze is appointed as a Managing Partner of KPMG in Georgia. Kakha has been working at KPMG since 2007 and has made a significant contribution to the firm's development and growth. He has always focused on fair and effective team management, development of intellectual capital, professional services and development of the tax practice in Georgia.

This role was handed over to Kakha by his predecessor, Andrew Coxshall, who managed for 12 years KPMG in Georgia, which is recognized as a trusted and high-professional firm in audit, tax, legal and advisory services. Commenting on his appointment, Andrew Coxshall emphasized the achievements and leadership skills of Kakha Rukhadze: "Our firm would not have been so successful without Kakha's professionalism and dedication. I am delighted that Kakha will be leading KPMG in Georgia for the years to come".

In turn, Kakha Rukhadze notes that KPMG in Georgia will continue focusing on offering high quality service, which is attributable to the values and professionalism of KPMG's employees.
